Education

- B.A., Philosophy, Wheaton College

Rob has both executive and information technology expertise. Most recently, he was a senior executive in the enterprise software space, working in companies ranging from startups to global organizations. His knowledge base includes team building, customer retention, and process implementation. He now concentrates his efforts to find ways to offer meaningful, living wage employment to disadvantaged individuals.

Rob has a passion for volunteering and has been heavily invested in community work all his life. He was a volunteer for OneCity, an ecumenically supported organization that helps nonprofits develop best practices. Rob became a therapeutic foster parent to four teenage boys for more than three years. As a leader with his church, Rob was involved in humanitarian efforts in Bosnia after its civil war was brought to an end. He is also a volunteer youth leader at LifeSpring Christian Church.

OneSource Experience

Rob has been an EXCEL coach for several years. During the 2017-2018 year, he agreed to become EXCEL program manager. Rob was part of the consulting team that developed a strategic plan for Concert Nova and assisted with the research for the St. Vincent de Paul homeless services study.
