Tim is a management and public finance specialist who devoted more than 35 years to public service with the express objective of making a difference. Most recently, he was the City Manager for the City of Dayton. Tim promoted making Dayton an immigrant-friendly city as an essential part of the city's economic recovery plan. Tim's other positions in Dayton include serving as Dayton's Finance Director & OMB Director, and as the Deputy Executive Director of the Dayton International Airport. In Cincinnati, Tim was a mayoral appointee to the Banks Working Group charged with the development of the City's riverfront. He is a former Deputy City Manager and Finance Director of Cincinnati, while also serving as Acting Cincinnati City Manager for a brief period of time. Tim's observations about effective governmental administration led him to write a seminal article, "Management by Unreasonable Objectives", about an award winning management strategy which was subsequently published by the National League of Cities.

Tim's commitment to responsive government has influenced his community activities. He is a past president of the Government Finance Officers Association of the US and Canada and former chairman of the Seasongood Good Governance Foundation. Currently, Tim is a board member of the Cincinnati Southern Railway. He recently commissioned a Monument to Public Service located in Downtown Dayton, Ohio. He also is working to make the King Records Museum a reality in Cincinnati.
