Jody is a New York licensed human and civil rights attorney. Her license to practice applies to New York State, Connecticut, the U.S. District Courts for New York, and the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals. As an attorney with Beldock, Levine & Hoffman, she specialized in civil rights, particularly class action, pattern-and-practice and individual employment discrimination and retaliation cases in New York. Jody was also formerly with the ACLU and CCLU, where she was involved in developing cutting-edge constitutional and other legal challenges concerning reproductive rights, fair housing, due process and First Amendment cases. Jody is adept at building consensus, strategic planning, directing research efforts, and interpreting data.

Jody served as Founder and President of the Women’s Union and President of the Classics Club at her alma mater, Union College, in New York. While attending Yale Law School, she was Editor of the Yale Journal of Law and Feminism and Student Director of the Poverty Law Clinic. Jody now volunteers with Dress for Success as a career counselor specifically focused on women with criminal histories.

OneSource Experience

As a project manager, Jody helped develop and refine the curriculum for leadership development workshops at United Way. She was one of the project managers assisting Green Acres Foundation with an organizational staff assessment. Jody also reviewed and helped update the EXCEL curriculum. Jody joined the OneSource staff in 2018 as Manager of Consultant Services.
