Robin is a business executive who works with organizations to achieve breakthrough results. She is the principal of her own business, RSG Consulting Inc. In one of her assignments, she helped a 140-year multigenerational family business achieve its highest profit level in years. In another, she developed a plan that was a major factor in saving a 35-year business from bankruptcy. At an earlier stage in her career, as Lead Process Engineer at Procter & Gamble, she identified and resolved a start-up defect that saved the company $1.3 million in its first year. Robin's skills include, strategic planning, organizational assessment, project management, and team building.

Robin is a strong advocate for parental involvement in education. Active in her PTA in Lexington, Kentucky, she was responsible for a five-fold increase in its fundraising abilities. Her volunteer activities led to her PTA being recognized with the Child Advocacy Award for three of her five years on that board.

OneSource Experience

Robin looks forward to putting her skills to use in business solutions and strategic planning projects.
