Mike is a management executive with 25+ years of international business experience across multiple industries, including chemicals, coatings, composites, consumer electronics, and automotive. In addition to his broad industry experience, Mike has also held several different functional roles, including in R&D, Sales, Operations, Quality Management, Marketing, Business Development, and General Management. His persistent and relentless focus on understanding and exceeding customer needs has given him a truly unique perspective on business structure and strategy. His self-described "innovative thought leader" persona has also enabled him to remain stubbornly curious throughout the years. Prior to retirement, he was Vice President of the Industrial Manufacturing Group at Michelman, managing a global team of Sales, Marketing, and Technology professionals focused on delivering innovative solutions to the composites industry.

To maintain his industry engagement, Mike remains active in several professional associations, including the American Marketing Association, Society for the Advancement of Materials and Process Engineering (SAMPE), and the American Chemical Society (ACS). He also is a former trustee and officer of both SAMPE and ACS.

OneSource Experience

Mike looks forward to participating in strategic planning and business service projects.
