A senior executive in both for-profit and nonprofit corporations, Peter skillfully applied proven business practices in nonprofit environments. For more than 15 years, he was President and CEO of Jewish Vocational Service (JVS), a nationally respected agency providing job training and placement services for adults with developmental disabilities. His foresight led to the combination of Jewish Vocational Service's publicly funded programs with Easter Seals Work Resource Center. After the consolidation, Peter became Executive Vice President, Integration, of Easter Seals TriState. He continued as President and CEO of JVS Career Services, the organization that sustained JVS's sectarian mission. Prior to JVS, Peter served as an investment counselor at Bartlett & Company, Plant Manager of Duro Bag's Covington Division and as the first Executive Director of The Manuel D. & Rhoda Mayerson Foundation.

A member of the Bon Secours Mercy Health Stewardship Committee and a Facilitator for the Leadership Council for Nonprofits, Peter is a former Trustee of the Walnut Hills High School Alumni Foundation and of the Mercy Health-Cincinnati Foundation. He is Past President of the Leadership Council, the Ohio Association of Rehabilitation Facilities, and the International Association of Jewish Vocational Services. He also is a former chair of the Free Store/Food Bank in Cincinnati and a past President of the Isaac M. Wise Temple.
