Paulina is a continuous improvement and supply chain manager with nearly a 20-year history working with global corporations including Walmart, Amazon, and Procter & Gamble. Paulina's accomplishments include delivering multi-million-dollar savings and running loss elimination programs. She has expertise in Lean Six Sigma tools and agile management. Gillette, a division of Procter & Gamble, recognized her with its Operational Excellence Award for her loss elimination projects and capability creation. Paulina's skills include strategy development, project portfolio management, supplier management, training, and capability building. As part of her responsibilities, she has mentored and coached young professionals on their career trajectories.

Paulina has supported education, poverty and environment causes through different volunteering enterprise programs, such as Habitat for Humanity; also, cleaning beaches in Costa Rica, planting trees and supporting local schools with programs aimed to provide basic supplies and appropriate education settings.

OneSource Experience

As a new volunteer, Paulina looks forward to working on business improvement projects and to assisting with leadership development programs.
